BLIMP VANDALIZED AT STEVENSON FIELD!

VALUABLE MOTOR CAR ALSO DAMAGED

Sir Hamish McDougall, famous industrialist and inventor also had his personal motor, a custom Duesenberg SJ car damaged by assailants unknown. Sir Hamish was travelling with some recent employees to Stevenson Field in order to travel to his private island on Lake of the Woods when the attacks occurred. "We were driving along Ellice Avenue on our way north to the field when person or persons unknown started attacking my car. Fortunately my new driver Miss Giselda has an almost preternatural sense for hazards and managed to avoid all but the last attack. After my car was disabled she managed to steer the car to the curb safely. Un-fortunately several other vehicles and one building were damaged in the attacks but I have already arranged for the owners to be recompensed. After reaching the airfield Sir Hamish and his fellows were attempting to leave the city by blimp when they were once again assailed. The valuable blimp was so badly damaged

SIR HAMISH MCDUGALL

Is well known to readers of this paper as an industrialist, philanthropist and the inventor of "Neutralium" the element that interferes with the powers of Wonders. It is the only means by which miscreant Wonders can be safely imprisoned. Sir Green's fortune was greatly enhanced by this discovery and the scope of his philanthropic activities have been greatly broadened.

that it is believed to be a complete write-off. During the attack a valuable experimental gas created by Sir Hamish was released from the blimp and dispersed. A tractor used in towing blimps and aircraft from hangers was also badly damaged. When informed that his new employees were implicated in the daring attempted robbery at the Bank of Montreal on the previous day Sir Hamish expressed dismay and stated that they would be leaving his employ immediately! "I have not truck with such misdoing! All know me as a man of integrity and the highest morale compass. I will have nothing to do with such activities. What need do I have to rob a bank?" he laughed to a chorus of supporting laughter from the surrounding reporters. , Miss Gwendolyn Montgomery, the local representative of BoHWI gave her usual, "No comment" when pressed for one.

BIG STORM HITS WEST AND SOUTH ONTARIO

IT WAS PINK AND NAKED!

Stevenson Field air traffic control staff were stopped by police as they sped eastward away from Stevenson Field on Ellice Avenue. When questioned as to why they were travelling at such a percipitous speed along a residential avenue the wild eyed driver shared the following story: "Weel we were getting ready to see Sir Hamish off on his blimp, the Intrepid, as he flew to his cabin on Lake of the Woods when something happened. There was some kind of dustup and the blimp suddenly collapsed. We couldn't see anything at all but the airbag collapsing but then it came towards the tower! It was pink and it was naked. It floated across the field and headed toward the tower. Well that was enough for us, we got, pardon my Wonder, the hell out of there and feel lucky to be alive. It looked horrible and we were sure it meant to kill us all! After checking their breath for the smell of alcohol and conferring with headquarters the patrolmen let them off with a warning to drive more safely.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sirs,

As a long time subscriber to your august publication, I for one was outraged and disappointed to read your recent article (Nov. 16) regarding the Wondrous robbery at the Bank of Montreal.

I object, not to your coverage of such an event, but to your pandering to the basest nature of the reader with the indiscriminate use of such repugnant words that would be better left to medical professionals and prostitutes. Was it not enough that the good people of this city were traumatized by the abominable visage that was said to have openly floated through the banking hall? Need they be further mortified by the term with which you chose to describe it? It is far from proper for such to be uttered in public, much less printed for sensitive and impressionable eyes to regard. In future I would ask that your editors please take measures to ensure such words (which I have taken pains to not repeat) be left out.

Dear Editor,

As a concerned citizen, it pleases me to see you are publishing accounts of what happened at the Wonderous event. Too often major events involving Wonders go unreported. I hope to see more articles like this in your fine publication. I do find the part about the floating fetus a bit outlandish though. It seems possible Mrs. Throckmorton may have spent the morning celebrating again.

sincerely yours,
Grant Phillip Morgan
